TOURISM GOES TO JAIL

Provided by Kim Rivenbark

The Old Pender County Jail in downtown Burgaw is now the home of the Pender County Visitor Center. In 2013, the Town of Burgaw and Pender County agreed to renovate and jointly use the historic building which houses Pender County Tourism and a conference room on the first floor. The second floor jail cells were left untouched for future film opportunities. The Visitor Center is easy to find on the Courthouse Square with plenty of parking and information on what to do and see in Pender County.

The building was built in 1924 and served as the Pender County Jail until 1977. The building is a two-story stucco brick building with the second story of the building fitted with cells to house up to 21 prisoners. The first floor served as the living area for the jailer and his family and also doubled as an office for booking prisoners.

There were two notable breakouts during the history of the jail. In 1971, two prisoners rushed a guard, knocking him down and escaped into Burgaw. The inmates were tracked by bloodhounds and captured in town about 45 minutes later. The second attempted escape occurred in 1975 when four prisoners overpowered a deputy, took his gun, and held him hostage. Shots were fired in the struggle leaving bullet holes in a metal cell door that are still evident today. The situation was resolved when the inmates surrendered.
